About Georgia River Network and Paddle Georgia

Georgia River Network works to ensure a clean water legacy by engaging and empowering Georgians to protect, restore and enjoy our rivers from the mountains to the coast. Georgia River Network does this by connecting people to rivers and organizations working to protect rivers, helping citizens start new river groups, strengthening and supporting Georgia's network of 30+ river organizations, and advocating for, and involving citizens in, calling for strong protections for Georgia's rivers.

Paddle Georgia is a program of Georgia River Network. Paddle Georgia 2017 is the 12th year for Paddle Georgia, following up the wildly successful events on the Chattahoochee, Etowah, Ocmulgee, upper Flint, Coosawattee/Oostanaula, Oconee, Altamaha, lower Flint, Chattahoochee (again), Ogeechee and Conasauga/Oostanauala/Coosa Rivers. Paddle Georgia 2017 will be a week-long, 100-mile voyage down the Etowah River near Rome. Each night, participants will be shuttled to campsites at local schools and other facilities where educational programs, games, entertainment and meals will be provided.

Some 400 people have participated each year, ranging in age from 4 to 79.

The purpose of Paddle Georgia is to introduce Georgians to Georgia's rivers. In a long-distance canoe adventure of this nature, participants will be able to view the river as a whole, working, dynamic ecological system. They'll see the beauty they might see on a well-chosen, day-long paddle, and they'll see the other side of the river--that sometimes damaged side that can be missed on those short trips. We also have fun. Paddle Georgia is more than an adventure. It is a community event, uniting individuals from across the state and region in a common goal—to explore a river and have a great time doing it.
